"Shall Jersey City become a Sunday saloon for New York?" was the theme of Rev. John L. Scudder's sermon at the Jersey City Tabernacie yesterday morning. He said, in part:

"Thirty thousand drunkards swarmed across the Hudson and held high carnival on Jersey soil last Sunday. As a result of this victous importation from New York the Sabbath was made a day of revelry. Saloon keepers openly defied the law, and even located drummers at the ferries to inform the bibulous mob where they could be quickly served. Sunday afternoon and evening the police were kept busy dragging men to the lockup, and Monday our courts were filled with disorderly characters, whose normal abode is the lower part of New York.
